

Cannot Locate FoxPro Support Library (Windows only)

This error is generated when the computer cannot locate the proper file to launch the application. This is caused because FoxPro relied heavily on the now defunct autoexec.bat file which was required for earlier versions of Windows (Windows 95 and earlier). Because this file is no longer used, the FoxPro applications can get confused.

Resolution:

<http://psychcorp.pearsonassessments.com/pai/ca/support/tchsupport/assistsupport.htm> where they can download the latest foxw2600.esl file at the bottom of the page. They will want to save this file directly into the program folder for the offending application. For FoxPro applications, this folder will generally be on the root of their C: drive.
